

Name of Applicant: _____

Short Essay

“One World One Health” is a concept that was proposed in the “Manhattan Principles” by the Wild Conservation Society in 2004. In the Manhattan Principles, it is proposed that a more interdisciplinary and cross-sectoral approach is required for maintaining the integrity of ecosystems, including the health of humans, companion, production, and captive animals, and wildlife.

Considering the description above, first, describe your opinion and thoughts about the concept One World One Health or “Zoobiquity”; second, describe the specific field in which you plan to acquire expertise at the Graduate School, the reason why you are interested in the field, and describe how knowledge and skills of the specific field will contribute to One Health or Zoobiquity. (around 1200 words)

(attach additional pages if necessary)

【Title of essay】

【Your opinions and reflections on the concept of One World One Health or Zoobiquity】

【The specific academic field you plan to pursue in graduate school, and the reasons for your interest in it】

【How your specialized knowledge and skills will contribute to the advancement of One Health or Zoobiquity】

【Total number of words: _____ words】

Research Plan

In approximately 2,000 words, please describe your research plan after entrance to the Graduate School of Veterinary Medicine/Graduate School of Infectious Diseases at Hokkaido University. First, provide the background and purpose of the research by referring to domestic and international trends related to your prospective research field. Then, describe the materials and methods in more detail. Finally, provide the expected results and research outcome. Please write the details of the thorough discussions you have had with your prospective supervisor. This must be written by you personally.

(attach additional pages if necessary)

【Title of your research plan】

【Background and purpose】

【Materials and methods】

【Expected results and research outcome】

〔Total number of words: _____ words〕

Career Plan

In approximately 1,200 words, please describe your current career plan after graduation from the Graduate School of Veterinary Medicine/Graduate School of Infectious Disease at Hokkaido University.

(attach additional pages if necessary)

[Total number of words: _____ words]